

Sarah's Morning!

Directions: Read the paragraphs and number them from 1 to 6 to order the story.

While she was waiting, she went to buy a book. She was so preoccupied with her difficult morning that she walked out of the shop without paying and was arrested by the police.

When she got to the airport she realized she had forgotten her passport. So she jumped in a taxi and returned home. She grabbed her passport from the coffee table, got in a taxi, and went back to the airport.

When she arrived at the airport, she saw that she had missed her flight. She had to pay 500 dollars for another ticket for the next flight.

The police detained her for three hours and she missed her flight again. Sarah went home and decided never to fly again!

Sarah had to be at the airport for her flight at 9 am, but her alarm didn't go off and she overslept. She got dressed very quickly, threw everything into her suitcase and ran out of the house.

One mile from the airport the taxi broke down. She tried to flag down another, but they were all taken and so she ran the rest of the way.

