Suddenly, I.....(hear) a loud roar. The water under my feet(disappear). I(hear) people screaming and pointing at the sea. "What's going on?" I(wonder) as I(turn) to see a massive wave coming towards me. "Mark, run!" I(hear) my mum shout before the huge wave(swallow) me. I(be) under the water. I(try) to breathe and reach the surface but the force of the water just(push) me down. Then, Out of nowhere a hand(grab) me and(pull) me up. I(gasp) for air and(look) around. I(be) in a palm tree with a Thai man. I(can) see people in the distance running in panic.

I(feel) like crying but I(be) too shocked to even do that. The only thing I(can) do(be) to sit and watch, unable to move. The hours(pass) slowly. Suddenly, the Thai man(start) shouting and pointing to a helicopter. The pilot(see) us and came to rescue us. Half an hour later we(be) safe in the hills. There(be) a lot of people there.

I(feel) lonely and lost. "Mark you're safe," I(hear) my mum's voice say. I don't remember feeling more relieved in my life than at that moment.

Two days later we(leave) the island. We(feel) lucky to be alive but we(be) sorry for the locals that(lose) their homes. It(be) a terrible experience.
