

Panic at the post office

Yesterday morning, workers at the Mumbai Post office had a frightening experience. One of the workers was emptying a postbag when he saw a large python drop onto the floor. " I couldn't believe my eyes" said Ravi Singh. " My colleagues ran out of the room, and I jumped on a chair!" Mr Singh called Animal Rescue. While he was waiting for help, the snake moved under his chair and disappeared behind a pile of postbags.

Twenty minutes later, animal rescue officer Aisha Sharma arrived. After half an hour, the snake was safely in a bag. " We have a lot of pythons here in India, but we don't often find them in post offices!" She said. Later that day she took the snake to the local reptile centre.

By the time the post office closed, everyone was exhausted. " I used to like coming to work" said the manager Ajay Kapoor "but now I don't".

Read the article. Number the events in the order they happened.

Aisha Sharma arrived at the post office

The snake disappeared behind a pile of postbags

Aisha took the snake to a rescue centre

A worker began emptying a postbag

The post office closed

A large snake escaped from a postbag

Animal Rescue caught the snake