

1. LISTEN AND FILL IN:

2. LISTEN AND FILL IN: T (true) F (false) DS (doesn't say)

- 1 It takes Mr Stanton ten minutes to decide who is lying.
- 2 Mr Stanton has used a lie detector for many years.
- 3 We all tell lies.
- 4 Rubbing your eyes suggests you are telling the truth.
- 5 People tend to use their hands when telling lies.
- 6 A short reply to a question suggests the person is telling the truth.
- 7 Only right-handed people tell lies.
- 8 A change in the colour of our face shows if we are lying.
- 9 A smile doesn't always suggest someone is happy.
- 10 Body gestures always reveal the person's feelings.

3. READ THE TEXT ON PG. 114-115 SB AND TRANSLATE THE WORDS/PHRASES:

Confidently

To rub

Intensely

To hire

Truthful

To distinguish (between)

Forensic Psychologist

Subconscious

To conceal

Awkward

To spin a yarn

A fibber

To overcompensate

To convince

Suspicious

Instinctively

Barrier

To stall

Telltale sign

A twitch

Muscle spasm

To flash (across)

Eyelid

To droop

To pull the wool over someone's eyes

Itchy

4. MAKE 10 SENTENCES WITH THE WORDS/PHRASES IN BOLD (SEE. EX. 3)

5. FILL IN:

intensely

forensic

hurt

spin

confidently

signals

spasms

body

nature

contact

1 smile

6 to

one's feelings

2 _____ study

7 human

3 _____ language

8 to

a yarn

4 _____ psychologist

9 eye

5 subconscious

10 muscle

6. WATCH THE VIDEO AND FILL IN:

BIGGEST LIAR IN THE WORLD COMPETITION

Complete the text with the words below. CHECK

estate

hilarious

experienced

wide

selected

alive

Every November the quiet town of Santon Bridge in northern England comes

1) as people from far and 2) arrive to witness The World's Biggest Liar Competition. Anyone can enter, except for politicians, 3) agents and members of the legal profession; people that the creators of the competition believe to be too 4) at telling lies. Participants have only five minutes to recount their tales onstage and the winner is 5) by a panel of judges. Successful stories have been as outrageous as they were 6) . After all, people come to have a good laugh.