

The Queen's Coronavirus broadcast

[00:12] I'm speaking to you at what I know is an increasingly _____ time, a time of _____ in the life of our country, a disruption that has brought grief to some, financial difficulties to many, and enormous changes to the daily lives of us all. I want to thank everyone on the NHS frontline, as well as care workers and those carrying out essential roles who _____ continue their day-to-day duties outside the home in support of us all. I'm sure the nation will join me in _____ you that what you do is _____, and every hour of your hard work brings us closer to a return to more normal times. I also want to thank those of you who are staying at home, thereby helping to protect the _____, and sparing many families the pain already felt by those who have lost loved ones.

[01:18] Together we are _____ this disease, and I want to reassure you that if we remain united and _____, then we will overcome it. I hope in the years to come everyone will be able to take pride in how they responded to this challenge, and those who come after us will say the Britons of this _____ were as strong as any, that the attributes of self-discipline, of quiet, good-humoured resolve, and of fellow feeling still characterise this country. The _____ in who we are is not a part of our past, it defines our present and our future.

[02:07] The moments when the United Kingdom has come together to applaud its care and essential workers will be remembered as an expression of our national _____, and its symbol will be the rainbows drawn by children. Across the Commonwealth and around the world, we have seen _____ stories of people coming together to help others, be it through delivering food parcels and medicines, checking on neighbours, or _____ businesses to help the relief effort. And though self-isolating may at times be hard, many people of all faiths and of none are discovering that it presents an opportunity to slow down, pause and _____ in prayer or meditation.

[03:02] It reminds me of the very first broadcast I made in 1940, helped by my sister. We as children spoke from here at Windsor to children who had been _____ from their homes and sent away for their own safety. Today, once again, many will feel a painful sense of _____ from their loved ones, but now as then, we know deep down that it is the right thing to do. While we have faced challenges before, this one is different. This time we join with all nations across the globe in a common _____. Using the great advances of science and our instinctive _____ to heal, we will succeed, and that success will belong to every one of us. We should take comfort that while we may have more still to endure, better days will return. We will be with our friends again. We will be with our families again. We will meet again. But for now, I send my thanks and warmest good wishes to you all.
