Reading

1. Look at the pictures, then read the articles and drag the names of the jobs to drop them in the corresponding pictures.

1 Would you like to be an extra in a film? Extras are the people in the background. They are the shoppers in the street or the diners in a restaurant. Think you can do it? You don't need acting skills, you just need to have the traits asked for: getting up early and arriving on time. Sometimes you get to wear great costumes or even dress as a monster. The downside is that you mustn't talk to the actors and actresses, take their photos or ask for autographs.

The best part? Seeing how the film is made!

2 Tasting chocolate sounds like a dream job, and it is, not to mention it's well-paid too. You don't need qualifications either, only a very good sense of taste or smell. For this job, you must have good hygiene, especially when you visit a chocolate factory. Jane Cameron has been a chocolate taster for three years and she'd never change jobs. She says, 'You have to watch the calories and you need very strong teeth!'

The best part? Trying lots of chocolate!

3 This has to be the most enjoyable job in the world! You slide down waterslides, check the height and speed of the water, and make sure that they're safe. You never stay dry! Waterslide testers travel around the world to visit different theme parks. James Powell, a waterslide tester, has travelled 43,000 km since 2010 and has tested waterslides in Egypt, Mexico, Greece, and Jamaica.

The best part? You don't have to queue for the slides!
