It's the person you can tell him or her your most intimate secrets.

II. Read the passage and answer the following the questions:

I was about nine years old at that time, and my mother took me to the theater. It was a special show for children, with songs, clowns, and magic. After the first part of the show, the presenter came out and said: "Any child who's got a birthday today, come up onto the stage and you're going to be the magician's assistants". My mum gave me a push and said: "Go on, you go". And as I really wanted to the stage, I rushed up, with some other children. When I was up there, the magician asked my name and then said: "So it's your birthday today then?". And I automatically said: "No, it's on July 23rd". As soon as I said it, the whole theater burst into laughter. My face went bright red, and some of the children called out: "He's a cheat. It's not his birthday today." At that moment I felt very ashamed and wanted the earth to open up and swallow me. The magician said: "It doesn't matter and you could stay on stage", but I felt awful the whole time. As I came down from the stage, all the other children looked at me and laughed.
