

People have different ideas about what art is. A lot of what is considered art are things that we can see. For example, paintings and drawings are considered art. Photographs and sculptures are also considered art. But what about things we can see that contain moving images, such as movies or video games? Do you think they should be considered art? Why or why not?

Answer the questions:

Read the page 112 and 113 and answer.

1. How did the brightly colored mural that residents painted on their houses in Las Palmitas change the way that the residents felt about their neighborhood?

2. Why did two British artists place hundreds of thousands of ceramic poppies around the Tower of London?

3. What was the purpose of the public art created on a glacier in Iceland?

Read again. Then check T for True or F for False.

1. One purpose of public art is to make people aware of a situation.
2. A public space is an area people must be invited to enter.
3. People often pay to see statues in museums.
4. Something that is free costs a lot of money.
5. Public art deals with a variety of topics.

Listen the audio and fill the gaps.

JR is a famous French _____ artist. He uses photographs to create beautiful _____ in many different countries around the world. Several years _____, he started the Inside Out project. For this project, he invites people in a community to think of a sentence. It can be a _____ message, or just a sentence about what is important to them. He then uses large black and white photos of the people together with the sentence and makes a mural for their _____. The faces of the people often show different emotions—_____, joy, anger, or _____. The project encourages people to come together to talk about _____, and maybe even change it.