

A NEW SCHOOL

Read the text. Who helps David?

It was raining hard when David got to school on Monday morning, and he didn't have an umbrella. He usually remembered his umbrella when it was raining but he was in a hurry and forgot. He was wet and his rucksack was full of books. It was his first day at the school and he was late. He had to wait for the head teacher to open the gate.

"It's a quarter to ten," he said. "School starts at nine o'clock. You've got maths now so hurry up!" But there was nobody in David's classroom. He spoke to a teacher. "You haven't got maths now, you've got science. Go to room 3B. It's opposite the art room."

It was ten o'clock when David found room 3B. His class was already leaving when he arrived. The teacher looked very unhappy. "Are you the new boy? You're very late. Just follow the other pupils. You've got geography next."

David was feeling bad. It was his first day and he was already sure that the teachers didn't like him. A boy talked to David. "Hello, my name's Richard. Would you like to copy my timetable? We've got geography now and history after the break." He looked friendly and David felt better. "Don't worry about the teachers," said Richard. "They shout sometimes but they're very nice really!"
