

Joining the sentence into the correct order:

1.	A. On the one hand, many of the ideas that elderly people have about life are becoming less relevant for younger people.
2.	B. While I agree that some traditional ideas are outdated, I believe that others are still useful and should not be forgotten.
3.	C. Other characteristics that are perhaps seen as traditional are politeness and good manners.
4.	D. The traditional roles of men and women, as breadwinners and housewives, are no longer accepted as necessary or appropriate by most younger people.
5.	E. On the other hand, some traditional views and values are certainly applicable to the modern world.
6.	F. In conclusion, although the views of older people may sometimes seem unhelpful in today's world, we should not dismiss all traditional ideas as irrelevant.
7.	G. For example, older generations attach great importance to working hard, doing one's best, and taking pride in one's work, and these behaviours can surely benefit young people as they enter today's competitive job market.
8.	H. In our globalised world, young adults can expect to come into contact with people from a huge variety of backgrounds, and it is more important than ever to treat others with respect.
9.	I. It is true that many older people believe in traditional values that often seem incompatible with the needs of younger people.
10.	J. In the past, for example, people were advised to learn a profession and find a secure job for life, but today's workers expect much more variety and diversity from their careers.
11.	K. Moreover, the greatest disparity between the generations can be seen in their attitudes towards gender roles.