It seemed an _____ day but it was not. I woke up to get ready for school. Standing in front of the_____, I saw that I had more than my two arms – I had two beautiful, _____wings on my back. At first, I was frightened. I thought I had turned into a_____. But then I realized that I had been dreaming that I had turned into a butterfly and the dream had actually come true. I was a_____. I forgot about school and at once took flight, soaring out of the window. It was_____! I could fly and flutter about, through the trees, over _____and lawns, across houses and flowers.

The world was suddenly so much more beautiful and happier. I understood how free the birds must feel too, just like butterflies. I called out to my brothers and sisters and they were_____. The sun was warm and gentle and the breeze was_____. So we gathered in the garden and I flew about asking them to try to catch me. They ran _____with joy. But they could never catch me!
