

Museum

Join the first half of the sentence and the second half of the same sentence with a line.

A museum is a building	show what human life was like in the past.
The museums educate people about	the natural world or human culture.
Science museums use their collections to	England, opened to the public in 1759.
History museums collect objects that	of plants, animals, rocks, and other natural objects.
Natural history museums display samples	that holds a collection of objects
The British Museum in London,	to the city of Oslo from the artist.
Located in Oslo the Viking Ship Museum contains	suitable for high sea voyages.
The Munch Museum's collection, was a gift	explain different areas of science and technology.
The Gokstad Viking Ship was a fast ship,	buildings from the Middle Ages until the present time.
In Sogn there is an open-air museum with more than 30	3 of the best-preserved Viking ships in the world.

© 1985 Watterson. Distributed by Andrews McMeel Syndication.