Nearly half of all homes in Britain get outside staff ¹ (do) their domestic chores for an average of six hours per week. The most common reasons that people gave for having someone ² (help) around the house were their own long working hours and to avoid arguments with their partner. A third of people said if they didn't have help, nothing would get ³ (do). The most popular domestic jobs are having the house ⁴ (clean) regularly, getting someone ⁵ (do) the gardening and having a handyman ⁶ (fix) things when they are broken. Some of these services do not come cheap either. People pay up to $800 per week to have a personal assistant ⁷ (organize) their appointments or have their young baby ⁸ (care) for.
