Jobs for James

By: Maribeth Boelts

James saw a cool new hamster cage. "Hamster Hank would like this," he said. "Hank could run in all the tubes and rooms," said James. At home, James counted his money. "I have fourteen dollars," said James. "The cage costs thirty dollars." "I will earn the money," James said. "I will ask my family if there are any jobs I can do," he said. Grandpa paid James six dollars for raking up leaves. Mom paid James six dollars for cleaning the garage. Mrs. Tom, James neighbor, paid four dollars to pull weeds out the garden. James made all the money he needed and he was proud of his work. James got Hank's new cage.
