Big Brother

An advert on TV the other day said I should follow all the 'action' on Big Brother. Big Brother? Isn't that the reality _____ where people are in a house all day either sleeping or making coffee? Not much action there, really! But the oddest thing about programmes like Big Brother is that it isn't real. Sure, the 'stars' are ordinary people instead of professional _____, but that's where the reality ends. The show can't be real if it's got a _____ telling the participants what to do. Of course, this kind of show doesn't have a _____ with _____ for the participants to learn, but they know the viewers will vote them off the show if they don't give a good performance. They also know that most viewers want to see some kind of drama. Usually this leads to the participants behaving like idiots. Some viewers may like this, but it isn't my cup of tea at all. I prefer a good _____.
