THE BUCKET LIST

CARTER: What are you doing?

EDWARD: What is this?

CARTER: Come on, give it _____.

EDWARD: What is it?

CARTER: Give it back!

EDWARD: It was on the floor, I didn't know, it was a state _____.

CARTER: My freshman philosopher professor assigned this exercise...

In forward thinking... he called it a _____.

We're supposed to make a list of all the things we wanted to do in our lives, before...

EDWARD: Before we kick the bucket...cutesy.

CARTER: Anyway, I wrote down things like, make a million dollars, first black _____.

You know, young man's wishes...But now it's gone, through with these...

EDWARD: Help a complete stranger for the good. Laugh until I cry. Not to be judgemental, but this is _____ weak

CARTER: Well... it's pointless now.

EDWARD: I would argue the exact _____.

CARTER: What are you doing?

EDWARD: A little rewrite, that's all. I mean, don't you wanna go out with some balls? Guns blazing, have a little fun?

CARTER: It's not supposed to be, about guns blazing, anything like that, you're missing the point.

EDWARD: What the hell is with doing _____ majestic?

CARTER: Have you ever been to the Himalayas?

EDWARD: Drive Mustang Shelby, not bad. I've got one. How about skydiving? Now we're on to something.

CARTER: We're on to something? Let me see...

CARTER: Kiss _____ in the world. How do you propose doing that?

EDWARD: Volume.

CARTER: Get a _____. Is that the sum of your ambition? Edward, I've taken baths, deeper than you.

EDWARD: It's easy to be deep and fresh in philosophy. What's Dr. Hahn say? We've got months, right?

CARTER: A year, _____.

EDWARD: You think 45 years went by fast? We _____ do this... we should do this.
