Device name	Image	Device service
Hard disk
Random access memory
Video adapter
Motherboard
Central processing unit (CPU)

Controls other parts of computer like human brain controls the body. It reads the list of instructions one by one.	It is used for temporary storage of data and programs when working with a computer.
A device that transmits an image from the computer's memory to the monitor in the form of a video signal.	The data is stored on the hard drive permanently, even if the computer is turned off.
The board on which the busbars are located, connecting the internal devices of the computer to each other.

LIVEWORKSHEETS