The motorcycle diaries

Before he became a famous revolutionary: Che Guevara was simply Ernesto Guevara de la Serna from Argentina, a student looking for fun. He was studying medicine when he decided to travel across Latin America by motorbike with his friend Alberto.

They slept on floors, met girls and drank beer. They walked through deserts and up mountains and spent some time working in a leper colony. In Peru. Their only problem was transport, once crashing a motorbike into a cow! But it was an amazing journey. They traveled 5,000 miles in four hours.

While he was traveling, Ernesto met many poor people from Chile, Peru and Bolivia, and this opened his eyes to the lives of poor people. At the end of the journey, he stopped studying to be a doctor, and began his life's work - fighting for the poor. Later, Guevara and his friend Alberto wrote books about this journey, and in 2004 the story was made into a film. The Motorcycle Diaries.
