IV. READING

Task 1: Read the text and fill in the gaps with NO MORE THAN TWO WORDS.

A good hotel needs to be able to meet all of its guests' needs. However, a guest's needs can be as variable as the guests themselves. Some guests want to be able to do business on the road. Others want to be royally pampered and not have to lift a finger. It's not an easy task to supply everyone with the perfect hotel experience.

One thing that every hotel worth its salt should provide, however, is complimentary toiletries. They can mean a world of difference to any traveler. For one, it means you can save space in your luggage, and it means free goodies to take home at the end of the trip! A safe and a mini-bar are also hotel-room staples. You should always keep your valuables under lock and key in the safe. Before you raid the minibar for drinks and snacks, remember: they aren't free! That goes for room service as well. If you order, just know that you'll get a big bill when you check out.

If you need to make a call, you can use the phone in your room. Most hotel phones operate under the same system. To call another room in the same hotel, simply dial the room number. To call a number outside the hotel, first dial for an outside line (usually 9 or 0), then dial the number you want to call. If you want to make a long-distance call, on the other hand, you'll have to contact reception. They will act as an operator and place the call on your behalf.

11. It is hard for the hotel to give every guest perfect experience because of their _____ needs.

12. Providing _____ can help guests save some space in their luggage.

13. Guests can keep money and important documents in _____ available in their rooms.

14. Payment for stuff in the mini-bar or ordered from room service is delayed until guests _____.

15. The receptionist will act as an operator to help guests have a

_____.
