

Cardinal and Ordinal Numbers

Cardinal numbers tell how many of something.

- There are three boys in the line.

Ordinal numbers tell the order of things.

- The third boy in line is my son.

Fill in the blanks below using ordinal numbers.

A: There are eight people in line at the bank.

1. There are two people in front of John. He is the _____ person in line.
2. There are three people behind Samantha. She is the _____ person in line.

B: There are 21 floors in the apartment building.

1. The gym is on the fifth floor. The laundry is on the floor above the gym. The laundry is on the _____ floor.
2. The community center is on the middle floor of the building. The community center is on the _____ floor.
3. Mai lives on the floor below the community center. She lives on the _____ floor.
4. The rooftop terrace is on the top floor of the building. The rooftop terrace is on the _____ floor.

Fill in the blanks below using cardinal or ordinal numbers.

1. Rosa and Don have a large family. They have _____ children.
2. The first _____ children are all boys.
3. Their _____ child is a girl.
4. Their _____ child is another boy.
5. Because their family is very big, Rosa and Don bought a new _____ bedroom house.
6. The house is on _____ St.
7. They moved into their new house on October _____.