

Dictation

Many children spend their holidays in summer camps where they can make new friends from all over the world. In summer camps children learn a lot of teamwork skills, they learn how to get along with their peers, how to take on more responsibility and they also learn a lot about different cultures. They can take up a hobby or attend English classes to improve their English. They spend a lot of time outdoors doing sports or going hiking. The food is healthy and the counsellors are very competent.

Not all children go to summer camps. Some of them have part-time jobs. Vera and Ida from Lymm have started a recycling business to help neighbours get rid of their rubbish. They go door-to-door and take paper, plastic, glass items and clothing to the recycling centre. They charge £1 for their service and they normally make £5 a day. They give all the money to the charity. Way to go, girls!
