This morning I am having a gastr_____ (1) to fix my stomach ulcers. The doctor promised me that he _____ (2) very careful at the moment of the surgery. He says that I _____ (3) to have a short post-operative recovery.

Last year, I had a gastr_____ (4) to see what was the problem, so the doctor found and recommended surgery. My surgery _____ (5), as I said, this morning but I am really nervous. I read online that people _____ (6) have the wrong surgery and that made me feel really afraid. I have a friend who had a rino_____ (7) and something went wrong with her septum tissue, so the doctors had to do something different. Now, she _____ (8) new surgeries every year to fix the doctors' mistakes.

I have had surgeries before. I had a col_____ (9) that drained the fluids from my body. Doctors say that I _____ (10) it for long, and they were right. I don't know what to believe anymore. As I continued reading the article online, I saw that some people _____ (11) secondary effects, so I better ask my doctor about it. When he came this morning, he said the following: "We _____ (12) everything in our hands for you to feel save and confident". and that calmed me down. Wish me luck :)
