An irresponsible hawker

Last Sunday, my parents and I (0) decide to go to a well-known hawker stall to have dinner. We went there (1) in 8.00p.m. and joined the beeline to place our orders. I looked around the stall and noticed that the hawker's hands (2) was really dirty. He just grabbed the ingredient and threw them (3) over the wok. I told my parents about it and wanted to leave the place. However, since we (4) has already ordered our food, we decided to stay. Upon receiving our food, we were shocked to (5) saw the small portion of fried noodles. We had (6) expectation more since the price of each plate was RM8.00. I was so annoyed with the price that I lost my appetite and could not (7) finished my meal. After we left, we realised that the hawker did not even give us (8) a correct change. That was our first and last experience there.
