Parts of Sentences:

A sentence has two parts: Subject and predicate.
The subject tells who or what the sentence it about.
The predicate tells what the subject does or how the subject is.

Example 1:
Our dog is sick.
(Who is the sentence about? Our dog... - subject)
(How is our dog? ...is sick. – predicate)

Example 2:
My sister is taking our dog to the vet.
(Who is the sentence about? My sister... - subject)
(What is my sister doing? ...is taking our dog to the vet. – predicate)

Today we will only work with subjects of sentences. When you say or write a statement, you must have a subject in the beginning of your sentence. Usually your subject will be a singular noun or a plural noun. Knowing if you subject is singular or plural is important because you will want to use the correct verb to go with your subject. We will talk about that in a different lesson. Today, we will read these sentences, write the subject, and write if it is singular or plural.

1. My dog likes to bark. _____ _____
2. My friends are at the park. _____ _____
3. My teacher is sick today. _____ _____
4. The report cards will be posted on November 10. _____ _____
5. These pizzas are delicious. _____ _____
6. The dishes are in the sink. _____ _____
7. The students walk outside during a fire drill. _____ _____
8. These cherries are sweet. _____ _____
9. My brother likes to play video games. _____ _____
10. My sisters are police officers. _____ _____

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Parts of Sentences:

A sentence has two parts: Subject and predicate.

The subject tells who or what the sentence it about.

The predicate tells what the subject does or how the subject is.

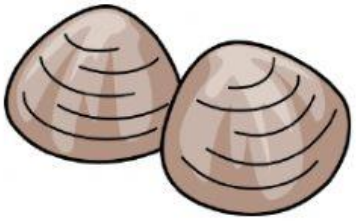

Read these sentences, write the subject, and write if it is singular or plural.

1. My dad is a great cook. _____ _____
2. The boxes are on the floor. _____ _____
3. The singer sings beautifully. _____ _____
4. The actresses won a prize. _____ _____
5. The athletes won the first place. _____ _____
6. My favorite team won the game. _____ _____
7. The basketball team will travel to Norfolk. _____ _____
8. The buses arrive late sometimes. _____ _____
9. The leaves turn yellow, red, and orange in the fall. _____ _____
10. The Atlantic Ocean has big waves. _____ _____

LIVEWORKSHEETS

Parts of Sentences:

A sentence has two parts: Subject and predicate.

The subject tells who or what the sentence it about.

The predicate tells what the subject does or how the subject is.

Read these sentences, write the subject, and write if it is singular or plural.

1. Some sea creatures are clams, oysters, and crabs. _____ _____
2. My dad cooked oysters for dinner. _____ _____
3. My family and I enjoy eating crabs. _____ _____
4. My dad and I go fishing every Sunday. _____ _____
5. Last Sunday, my dad and I went to York River for fishing. _____ _____
6. Next Sunday, my brother will go fishing with us. _____ _____
7. The children like to play outside. _____ _____
8. The sun is very bright today. _____ _____
9. The rain finally stopped. _____ _____
10. The trees have green, yellow, and orange leaves. _____ _____

LIVEWORKSHEETS