

	a medium-sized sailboat equipped for cruising or racing a large boat that uses a wide, cone-shaped net to catch fish a ship equipped with weapons and designed to take part in warfare at sea a vehicle or craft travels over land or water on a cushion of air provided by a downward blast.
	a boat with a powerful engine that can change direction easily and is used to pull large ships into and out of port a sea going vessel designed to lay underwater communication cable networks.
	a boat or ship for taking passengers and often vehicles across an area of water, especially as a regular service:
	a boat or ship that moves by steam power
	a merchant ship that carries cargo, goods, and materials from one port to another.
	a merchant ship whose primary function is to carry passengers on the sea.
	a ship designed for the bulk transport of oil or its products.

	the cargo ships which carry most sea-going non-bulk cargoes.

	That pole of a ship on which a flag , also called flagpost Topmost continuous deck above the maindeck of a ship.
	This is a level inside the hull, between the deck and the cargo hold.
	Navigation and command center of the vessel.
	Shipboard apparatus consisting of anchor windlass, chain stoppers and hawse pipes.
	Small superstructure on the top deck of a vessel which contains the helm and other navigational instruments.
	The underdeck space being below the lower deck in which the cargo is placed.

	Vertical partition walls which divide the interior of a ship into compartments or rooms.
	A tank positioned at the after end of a ship often filled either with fresh water for the daily use of the officers and crew , or with sea water ballast.

Fill in the gaps with suitable words:

1. The main parts of a ship are ....., ....., ....., .....
2. The main body of a ship is called .....
3. A number of horizontal surfaces called .....
4. The hull is divided into three part : .....
5. The deck at the top of the hull is called .....
6. Ship's extra weight that is used to increase stability is called .....
7. All the structures above the main deck make up .....

This type of ship carries crude oil in huge tanks.
This type of ship carries different cooled fruit , vegetables, frozen meat , fish, etc.
A multi-purpose vessel that carries different general cargoes, containers, etc.

This type of ship carries cargo such as iron ore, grain, etc that is located in bulk not in containers.
This type of ship pulls ships or push them ahead in ports.
This ship catches different types of fish in seas and oceans.
This type of ship is designed to carry standardsized containers in cargo holds and as deck cargo.
This type of ship carries cars, buses and trucks.
This type of ship carries different oil products.
This type of ship carries different chemicals in liquid form in tanks.
This type of ship carries different packed cargoes on the deck and different cargoes in holds.	