Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 24 to 28.(1.25pts)

The way we speak can tell others a lot about our backgrounds. We can guess if someone is from the northern part of our country or the southern. What happens if a child has a southern accent but uses northern words? We might guess that the child's family moved from the north to the south. The child has the accent of his friends but uses some words only used by his parents. Our social background also affects the way we speak. A famous sociolinguist, William Labov, tried to find a link between accent and social class. He went to three different shops in New York. The first was used by upper class people, the second by the middle class, and the third by the lower class. He found that in general, people in the upper class shop did not pronounce "R" in the same way as customers in the other shops.

Question 24: What is the main idea of the passage?

A. The relationship between the way we speak and our background.

B. The relationship between the northern and southern accents
