Hi Andrew,

I hope you're still enjoying life in the US. I need to ask you for some advice. My best friend is called Luke. I've known him for about five years. We've always done everything together. Last month some new students joined our class and now Luke is spending lots of time with them. He never asks if I want to hang out with them. He never answers my texts or emails. Or, if he does, he just says something short like – see you later. We used to see each other every evening after school to chat or play computer games. Now I'm really lonely. I don't know what I've done wrong and why he wants to hang out with them. He's only just met them! I feel really bad and I can't concentrate on studying for my exams. I just don't know what to do. Any ideas?

Matt
