BEST FRIENDS FOREVER

Read the story. Answer the questions that follow.

J'coda and Shamia were always the best of friends. They grew up three houses away from each other in the small community of Centreville. The girls spent almost every day together, playing games and watching movies.

But one day Shamia's father came home with bad news for J'coda and Shamia. He just got another job on the island of Exuma and Shamia and her family had to move right away. The girls were so sad. They thought they would never see each other again.

Shamia's father assured J'coda and Shamia that they could call each other every night, and J'coda could visit Shamia anytime she wanted. Although they wouldn't be neighbors they would be friends forever.
