If you are still not sure how to use different future constructions, you can read the rules below.

5A Future forms

2.5 Decisions, plans and arrangements

We use will to make a spontaneous decision (= a decision while we are speaking):

OK, I'll come for a run with you.

We use going to to talk about future plans (= decisions we made earlier):

We're not going to stay at that hotel again.

We use the present continuous to talk about arrangements (= fixed plans, usually involving other people and specific times and places):

She's travelling to Central America on Sunday.

There is not a big difference in meaning between going to and the present continuous to talk about future plans / arrangements. Often both are possible:

I'm visiting / going to visit my sister this weekend.

2.6 Offers, promises and suggestions

We use will to make offers and promises:

I'll help you, if you like.

I'll always be here when you need me.

We use shall + I in questions to make offers and suggestions:

A Shall I carry that for you?

B Oh, yes, please.

A Shall we go swimming on Saturday?

B That's a good idea.

2.7 Predictions

We use will to make predictions based on our opinions:

I'm sure you'll learn a lot when you go travelling.

Don't put that there! It'll fall off.

We use going to to make predictions based on concrete facts (= things that we can see or information that we have read, etc.):

We should leave soon. The roads are going to be busy.

It's not going to rain. There isn't a cloud in the sky.

Tip In negative sentences, say I don't think + will.

I don't think the forest will recover. NOT ~~I think the forest won't recover.~~

Underline the best option in each sentence.

1. A It's a bit hot in here.
B Yes ... I'll/ I'm going to open a window.
- 2 I'm going to the shop. Will / Shall I get you anything?
- 3 A Why are you carrying those flowers?
B Because I'll/ I'm going to ask Sara to marry me!
- 4 A I'm so tired.
B I'll /I shall make you a coffee, if you want.
- 5 I've got a bad stomach. I think I'll/ I'm going to be ill.
