Read the story and complete it with the past perfect simple or continuous of the verbs.

One winter's night, 16-year-old Daisy was sitting on the sofa watching TV. Her parents.....(go) out to a party. It was cold and Daisy had a warm blanket round her. It .....(snow) all afternoon, but the snow..... (just stop) falling.

Daisy was watching a horror movie when she suddenly screamed.

She.....(catch) sight of a strange-looking man outside, staring at her through the glass door behind the television set. Terrified, Daisy pulled the blanket over her head, reached for her mobile and called the police.

Luckily the police arrived in a few minutes, and Daisy told them about the strange man she..... (see) outside the glass door. The police opened the door and went into the garden. After they.....(look) around, they came back into the house and explained that no one.....(be) outside because there were no footprints in the snow. Daisy finally agreed that she.....(imagine) seeing the man Because she..... (watch) a scary movie.

Then one of the police officers looked behind the sofa and his face went white. He pointed at wet footprints on the carpet behind the sofa. Then Daisy realised that she..... (not see) the man outside the glass door, she.....(see) his reflection in the door-because he.....(stand) behind her!
