Cleaning the bath can be a lot of fun yet it is a dirty job. First thing first, gather all the cleaning supplies that you may need for the bathroom cleaning job. It may include soap scum remover, mildew remover, bathroom surface cleaner, window cleaning fluid, toilet bowl cleaner, dust rag, paper towel, sponge, scrub brush, and floor cleaner.

First step:

Remove any dirty clothes or dirty towels and make sure that everything is in its place. The hardest part of cleaning the bathroom is cleaning the shower. So, since cleaning the shower is going to exhaust most of my energy, I like to start there. If the soap scum in the shower is really bad, you can allow the cleaner to soak for a short while before you start scrubbing it. Don't forget about cleaning the shower curtain or the shower door plus the track. There are a lot of products that are made to clean a shower. The choice of which products to use is up to you. Rinse the shower really well with water after you have cleaned it.

Second step:

Clean the mirrors. Mirror after a hot shower would become foggy. Streaks are found on the mirrors especially after a hot shower. To remove these streaks and make a sparkling clean mirror use some glass cleaner such as Windex. Remember to use rags to dust any shelves, moldings, door frames and baseboards.

Third step:

Clean the sink, facets and counter tops. Just a quick tip, products meant for cleaning bathroom or kitchen surfaces work fine for cleaning the sink.

Fourth Step:

This is the dirtiest job in the bathroom ... the toilet. There are several different areas of the toilet which need to be cleaned. First, clean the inside of the toilet with a regular toilet brush with a little bit of toilet bowl cleaner. Then, clean the rim of the bowl and the under part of the lid as well as the seat. Remember to clean the back of the toilet. A good surface cleaner will make the job a lot easier.

Fifth step:

I would recommend using paper towels to clean the floor of the bathroom. There are lot of germs around the bathroom that I'd rather just use paper towel to clean them and then throw them away to the garbage bin.

1. When you want to repot orchid, it is suggested that you choose a new pot that's an inch or two larger than the one before.
2. Specialized orchid planters have holes all around the surface to increase the air circulation in the roots, but you can use a traditional terra cotta pot as well.
3. One of the most important things to learn about how to repot an orchid is that they are very sensitive when it comes to bacteria and germs. So, you need to make a solution of ½ cup of household bleach and 1 gallon of water and soak the planter in this, as well as any tools you use.

4. Don't forget to wash your hands before you remove the plants because orchids are very sensitive to bacteria.
5. Gently pull the pot away from the plant and wash off the roots.
6. Be careful not to cut the healthy roots as you remove the plant from the pot.
