A: We've got to do an essay about <sup>0</sup> endangered animals.

What are you going to write about?

B: I haven't decided yet. I thought, elephants, maybe.

A: Really? Everyone knows about them. I'm going to write about turtles.

B: Really?

A: Well, if we don't <sup>1</sup> ..... the oceans, the coral and other sea creatures that the turtles feed on will disappear. I'm <sup>2</sup> ..... to save as many animals as we can and stop throwing away so much <sup>3</sup> .....

B: So you're saying that we need to <sup>4</sup> ..... things instead of throwing them away?

A: Exactly. Last year billions of tonnes of plastic found its way into the sea. We need to <sup>5</sup> ..... less food, energy and water. Then these animals might survive.

B: Well, I think I'll write about birds in danger.

A: That's a good idea. After all, smoke from factories has <sup>6</sup> ..... the air. So that must affect the birds.

Find Your Challenge

Two years ago, I was doing really badly in school.

I failed all my end of year exams. I

<sup>1</sup> ..... not studied anything that year. I didn't <sup>2</sup> ..... to do any homework, which annoyed my teachers, and I <sup>3</sup> ..... play video games every evening. How did I <sup>4</sup> ..... away with it? I wasn't preparing for the future, <sup>5</sup> .....! I was unhappy with myself. Then one day my attitude changed. I
