Animals in England

In the past, there were about 4,000 birds in London's Trafalgar Square. The government said that there were <sup>1</sup> too many birds. <sup>2</sup> _____ you looked, you saw one! The birds damaged buildings and the City of London spent <sup>3</sup> _____ money cleaning them. The government made it illegal for <sup>4</sup> _____ to feed the birds <sup>5</sup> _____ in the square. Now there are about 200 birds in the square; enough for the photographers, but <sup>6</sup> _____ to cause problems.

<sup>7</sup> _____ people driving in the north of England see <sup>8</sup> _____ that surprises them: wallabies! <sup>9</sup> _____ brought the animals from Australia many years ago but they escaped in the 1930s. They didn't leave to find <sup>10</sup> _____ warmer, they stayed in the area. They nearly all died in a very cold winter forty years ago. Luckily, there are still some there, but <sup>11</sup> _____ knows exactly how many.
