My family is very important to me. I love my parents and siblings and sometimes I think I don't know what I would do without them.

Family relationships is a very complicated thing. Very often parents don't listen to their children and children don't listen to the parents. In this situation, the relationships are really bad. But if you are kind, flexible and attentive person you will be able to save good relationships with your family members.

It's not easy today to be a parent, because it's so important to grow up the children kind and confident. Children expect a lot of love and understanding from the parents. If you pay attention to each other, listen to each other and talk you will definitely have good relationships.

There are families with only one parent. In this way mum or dad has to be twice stronger and keep an eye on the kids. I think in these kind of families relationships are worse, because mum or dad has to work twice harder.

Even in families with two parents relationships can be tough. Sometimes parents are too busy with their life and their job, that they lose control and connection with children.

Relationships in my family are different, but in I am happy. We have good and bad days like all families. We always try to find compromise and to solve any problem. It's important to be ready to speak up and to listen. People can make mistakes, but it's good also to accept these mistakes.

I respect my parents and I love my siblings. We work hard to have our home cozy and peaceful. I advise the same to everyone.

Answer the questions:

1. Why family relationship is a complicated thing?

2. What problems can a single-parent family have?

3. What is the secret of good relationships in family?