What's it like to live in a castle?
You may have visited a castle while you were on holiday this summer, but what about owning one or living in one?
Francis Watson-Armstrong owns a castle, but he hates to say so. 'I'm the keeper of the castle, the 54-year-old says. "I just keep it standing.
His castle is Bamburgh Castle, a large impressive building standing above Northumberland beach in North East England. It's one of the largest inhabited castles in the country.
The castle was built in the 11th century and it was in a poor state when William Armstrong bought it in 1894. He rebuilt large parts of it and the castle became the family home. It still belongs to the Armstrong family and is open to the public. Bamburgh Castle has been used as a filming location in a number of television series and films like Ivanhoe and Robin of Sherwood.
'I think it's a great responsibility to look after one of the most important historic buildings in the UK, but I love it, says Mr Watson-Armstrong. He has very fond memories of the childhood years he spent there. Francis Watson-Armstrong was 22 when he took over running the castle with his mother. He moved to a nearby farm in 2001, but the castle is still a home with 12 lived-in apartments. It is also a tourist attraction and more than 160,000 people visit it every year.
Maintaining the castle is a full-time job for a team of five people. It costs hundreds of thousands of pounds a year to maintain and run a castle which is the size of the Tower of London. Francis is doing his best to keep the castle in the family. His son William, 29, is taking on more responsibility for running the castle. He wants to increase visitor numbers and improve the experience.
Living in a centuries-old building filled with dark corners and secrets could be considered spooky, but is it? Some visitors claim that they have been touched by unseen hands; others have heard strange noises. 'I never saw any ghosts apart from when I was in there on my own, Mr WatsonArmstrong laughs. 'In my mother's bedroom I could hear footsteps. It's quite scary on a stormy night if you are there on your own. If there are any ghosts, I think they are friendly ghosts?
