Questions 22

One day, a mousedeer was searching for fruit near a river. He noticed that there were a lot of fruit trees on the other side of the river. He thought to himself, 'How can I go to the other side? There are a lot of crocodiles in the river but the fruits are so tempting.'

So, he decided to play a trick on the crocodiles. 'Hello, Mr Crocodile. The King of the Jungle asked me to count the number of crocodiles in the river. You have to call your friends to line up across this river. Then I will count all of you one by one,' said the mousedeer.

The crocodiles soon queued up in a line. The clever mousedeer started counting, 'One, two, three.....'

Finally, he reached the other side of the river. 'You silly crocodiles. I wanted to eat the sweet mangoes so I played a trick on all of you.' He laughed heartily and started running away from the riverbank.

The crocodiles were very angry for being tricked by the mousedeer. Meanwhile, the clever mousedeer was enjoying himself on the abundant fruits.
