A teen immigrant in the U.S.A.
Italian immigrants in the U.S.A.
My grandpa's life in Italy.

My grandpa was born in Italy but he didn't live there for a long time. He arrived in America with his parents when he was five years old. They didn't speak any English and it was difficult for them to start a new life. After many years of hard work, his father opened a small Italian restaurant in New York. When my grandpa was a teen he went to school in the morning, and after school he always helped his parents in the restaurant. When he was fifteen he could make delicious pizzas and wonderful lasagna! But he really wanted to go to university so every evening he studied hard until late at night. Now he is a doctor at a big hospital in New York. But his life wasn't only working and studying. There was a small field behind his house and he and his friends always played football there at weekends. The field and his house aren't there any more because the area is now full of tall buildings. My grandpa says his life was very hard but he enjoyed it. He considers himself a happy man.

My life isn't so hard because I don't need to work or help my parents at home. And I can't cook – I sometimes just put a frozen pizza in the microwave or something like that! I think my grandpa had a very different but interesting life when he was young. I'm very proud of him!
