A wedding that is up in the air!

Are you looking for a way to make your wedding more interesting and memorable? Last Saturday, a crane lifted Helen Gomez and James Brandon up onto a platform in the air for their wedding ceremony. They got married up there, 160 feet (50 meters) in the air with the officiant, who conducted the ceremony, and 20 of their friends and family. There was even a platform for musicians to play the music the couple wanted. After they shared their marriage vows, Helen and James did an exciting bungee jump over the side of the platform.

After the ceremony, the wedding party all went back down to earth, but then they all went back up again for the reception. At the reception, guests ate a three-course meal wearing seatbelts so they were safe and couldn't fall. The idea of this kind of wedding is to create an experience that really will be unforgettable. You're probably asking yourself, "is this safe?" Marriage in the Sky, the company who organized the wedding, insist that it is. They operate in more than 40 countries, including ones that have strict rules about safety, such as the U.S., Canada, and Australia.
