Let's celebrate!

Although people around the world celebrate many of the same events, they sometimes celebrate these special days quite differently. We found some interesting – and unique – traditions for celebrating New Year's Eve, birthdays, and weddings.

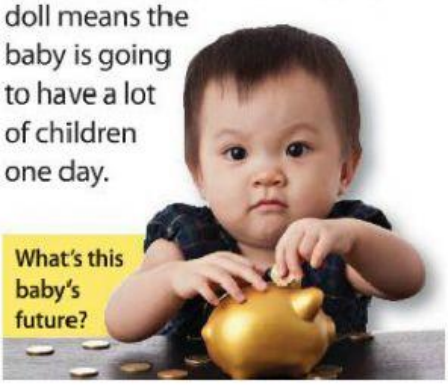

What is the new year going to bring?

NEW YEAR'S EVE

In Mexico, people celebrate the start of the new year by getting together with friends and family. On New Year's Eve, they have a special dinner. Then, when the clock strikes midnight, everyone starts eating grapes – one for each month of the next year. A sweet grape means the month is going to be a good one. If a grape is sour, then the month is not going to be so good.

BIRTHDAYS

In China, there's an interesting birthday tradition for infants. A baby is one year old on the day he or she is born. One year later, friends and relatives get together for the baby's second birthday. They put several objects in front of the baby, such as some money, a doll, and a book. If the baby picks up the money, it means he or she is going to be wealthy. Reaching for the book means the baby is going to be a teacher, and picking up the doll means the baby is going to have a lot of children one day.

What's this baby's future?

Are these newlyweds going to have good luck?

WEDDINGS

Weddings around the world have different traditions, and Venezuela is no exception. Of course, during a wedding ceremony, couples promise that they will always love and take care of each other. However, in Venezuela, the bride and groom don't always say their promises – sometimes they sing them. Later, during the reception, the bride and groom sneak away. If no one sees them leave, it means they are going to have good luck in their marriage. And that seems to be something that all these traditions have in common – they are all meant to bring good luck.
