PART 5

Read the article about Craig Kielburger and then mark the sentences below T (True) or F (False)

Children Helping Children

Craig Kielburger, from Toronto, Ontario, was only 12 years old when he discovered that even young people can make a difference in this world. One morning in April 1995, Craig was going through the newspaper when he noticed a story about a 12-year-old factory worker from South Asia. Craig was shocked to read about the murder of the boy who had spoken out against child labor. That's when Craig realized that even young people can have a voice and decided to do something about it. He asked his classmates in 7th Grade for help and together they started the Free the Children charity. Their goal is to free the children from poverty and exploitation. They want to teach other children that they can change the world and reach their goals. Today, Free the Children is the largest community of children who help other children through education with more than 1 million young people involved in 45 countries. Craig has shown us that even young people can beat challenging situations through dedication and determination and make the world a better place.

1. Craig is now 12 years old. .....
