The world of sport is constantly evolving. New sports are being developed all the time and if their popularity picks up, they spread to other countries. While Malaysians are generally sports-loving people, especially of sports like badminton and football, there are however, many other sports that some of us have never heard of which are becoming popular in Malaysia. Many of these games have proper regulations set by international associations and are played competitively worldwide.

One of them is touch rugby. The popularity of touch rugby in Malaysia is due to the fact that the sport can be played on almost any open field. Touch rugby is a limited-contact sport that can be played by mixed-gender teams of six. When touched by an opponent, a player must drop the ball for a teammate to pick up. A touch is on any part of the body, clothing and ball. A player claims a touch by raising a hand and shouting 'touch'. There are no field goals in touch rugby. Malaysia hosted the Federation of International Touch World Cup in 2019.

Another new sport is dodgeball. Dodgeball in Malaysia was pretty much unheard of until the last decade. This is another sport that expanded through youth players and is quite popular with students. Malaysia achieved notable success at the Dodgeball World Championship in Las Vegas in 2015, taking second and third placing for the men's and women's teams, respectively, out of eight participating countries.

Jombola is the latest sport that have been invented by a Malaysian. Played on a badminton court with large wooden paddles (called racquets) and a specially developed foam ball, the sport combines elements of badminton, tennis and table tennis. The sport is still quite new and is being introduced through universities both local and abroad, but it is slowly being accepted and growing in its popularity.
