Conversation One

A: Luke! Tomorrow's your first day in your new job. You're not going to wear that earring, are you?

B: I was going to. Why not?

A: Well, if I .....1 you, I .....2 wear it. It may not be appropriate in the office.

B: That's crazy. What's wrong with an earring, Beth?

A: Nothing. But lots of people are .....3 and they don't think men should wear earrings . . . at least at the office.

B: You're only .....4, and you sound like my grandmother. This is .....5 century. In any case, I need to be who I am. I'm an .....6.

Conversation Two

A: Celia, what a great .....7! When did you get it?

B: Just last week. But my husband thinks it's awful.

A: Doesn't he have one, too?

B: Yes. But he says it's not the same thing.

A: You mean he thinks it's OK for a man, but not .....8?

B: You got it.

A: What a .....9!

Conversation Three

A: Mark, I'm really unhappy. My daughter wants to go to law school.

B: That's great! What's the problem?

A: Well, I was hoping she'd marry a lawyer, not be one!

B: Why's that?

A: Well, it's just that I think men should be lawyers and women should stay home and have children.

B: That's a little .....10, if you ask me

Conversation Four

A: Kate! You can't go out in those clothes. I can see your tummy!

B: So? That's the style. Don't you watch TV? Read magazines?

A: I don't care. Girls should be .....11. People will think you're a bad girl.

B: But, Dad. You know I'm a good person. I follow all the rules. Everyone knows that!

A: That's true. But .....12 is very important for girls. If you're modest, people will know you're a good girl.
