

The Hollywood Walk of Fame is a pavement along Hollywood Boulevard in Los Angeles, USA. There you can see around 2,500 bronze stars placed in the ground. 1) each / every with the name of a famous Hollywood personality. There are 2) plenty of / a lot names that you'll recognise. The Walk of Fame includes celebrities from as far back as Charlie Chaplin right up to present-day stars such as Matt Damon. And although the Walk of Fame includes the names of 3) a large number of / a good deal of actors, it's not only film stars that can earn the honour of having a star. Stars are awarded to celebrities from 4) all / every areas of the entertainment industry including directors, producers and musicians. You can even see the names of 5) a few / few cartoon characters such as Mickey Mouse and Kermit the Frog! So, if you ever visit Hollywood, be sure to spend 6) a little / little time strolling along The Walk of Fame. You might not meet 7) many / much of your favourite celebrities in person, but at least you'll still be walking with the stars!
