The diversity of the Ecuadorian population

Ecuador is a country of cultural models full of diversity, due to the fact that it has an enormous ethnic variety in its different regions. Ecuador is a country very rich in ethno-cultural diversity, with 17 peoples and nationalities in which they are distributed in Amerindians, Afro-Ecuadorians, mulattos, whites, mestizos and mestizos.

The majority of the Ecuadorian population self-identifies as mestizo, although there are some who prefer to adhere to a basically white/European cultural heritage, mainly in the large cities, as well as mulattos, zambos and various small groups of immigrants from other countries and continents.

Cultural	It is a group where everyone identifies with something that differentiates them.
Diversity	It is a group where several types of species are found.
Population	Refers to a group of people with the same interests.
Peoples	They are species that coexist with different types of species.

LIVEWORKSHEETS