HOW TO AVOID TEEN TANTRUMS * ON HOLIDAY

The concept of the happy family holiday appears to go wrong when children reach adolescence. Teenagers generally prefer not to go on holiday with their parents but as they are given no option A ____, problems arise. There are additional tensions on holiday when families are brought together for long periods of time, and there is an expectation of everyone enjoying themselves. Unfortunately, it doesn't always happen that way. So what does it take to have a family holiday that doesn't end in tears?

Teenagers want to assert their independence. They may begin to resent help from their parents, seeing it as interference, and above all, they like to be among their peers, especially on holiday.

So what works with teenagers on holiday? Some specific destinations as well as special holiday options may prove more popular than others. The popularity of these destinations seems to be related B ____ to the type of people who go there.

An option that many families have tried is going on holiday with another family that also has teenage children. Nevertheless, this only works if the teenagers as well as the adults are compatible. Personality clashes C ____.

Teenagers enjoy the beach as long as they are surrounded by peers. Get the teenagers to take a friend with them, so that they can go out by themselves. Finally, something important to remember is that teenagers are not precisely keen on walking, fishing or cycling holidays. And if you are planning a holiday to improve your teenagers' minds, forget it. They also reject any holiday that claims to be cultural, romantic, scenic or relaxing.

* TANTRUM: an uncontrolled outburst of anger and frustration, typically in a young child.

Task A: Complete the gaps A, B, C with the corresponding phrase from 1 to 5. There are two extra phrases.

- 1 as much to the location and facilities on site as
- 2 may make the situation even worse
- 3 aggression without any logical analysis or explanation
- 4 because their parents are the ones that pay for holidays
- 5 the joy of spending holidays together

Task B: For each of the underlined words in the text, choose the best meaning a) or b)
