Passage 10

Many animals have camouflage. The white polar bear blends in with the snow. Insects such as the praying mantis can hardly be seen in their surroundings.

This __1__ camouflage ects animals from their enemies. A camouflage is a(n) __2__ to make an object blend in with its surroundings.

Camouflage is often used in war to hide soldiers, guns, tanks, and equipment from the enemy. Tanks, trucks, airplanes, and other war __3__ are more difficult to see in the desert if they are painted tan.

If they are used in dense forest, tanks can be painted green and brown to blend in with the leaves and branches. Khaki uniforms blend in with soil.

Uniforms __4__ in splotchy patterns can make soldiers look like leaves and grass. Airports have been camouflaged to make them look like villages-churches, schools, and gardens are painted on the runways and empty ground a few miles away is made to look like an airport.

Camouflage today is difficult because modern __5__ such as radar and cameras that use special films are not easy to fool.
