

- 1 Fill out the following organizer. Add events you know and your ideas about what will happen. Look at the example.

Fox tells Mole he wants to go to the moon.

By the time Fox and Mole found Condor, it was almost daylight. Condor [looking down at Fox and Mole]: What are you doing here? It's morning. Look at the rising Sun! Are you lost? You two are night creatures. You should be sleeping now!

mole: That's crazy! Where do you get these ideas? Do you think you can just fly there? Guess what, you don't have wings! So how are you going to get to the Moon?

Meanwhile, Fox is still on the Moon, living happily where he always wanted to be. When the Moon is full, you just might be able to see the happy fox in his home on the Moon.

The next night, Fox and Mole started to work on the rope. Using some very strong plants, they worked many days and nights twisting and braiding them to make the rope.