

My mom is planning a birthday party for me and I am so happy. I want a big Captain America as a piñata and lots of candies around the cake table.

I am sure my mom will do it great and my dad is going to be the DJ. He likes rock music but he knows that special day he must put some pop because all my friends like it.

I wish that day a cake with many decorations on top and explosive candles will be awesome too. They will appear on the picture. I am sure I will remember that day forever.

I know that all my friends from school will be there also my family like: cousins, uncles and aunts too.

Who is planning the party?

What does the kid want?

Who is the DJ?

Will he remember that day forever?

Who is going to be at the party?