AUSSIE FOOD

In a big country like Australia, there's a lot of different food to put on your plate. So what exactly is Australian food and how (1) _____ 'Australian' dishes can you name? Perhaps you think Australians eat Aboriginal food. Well, they don't eat lizards and insects - protein foods that the Aborigines found in their difficult desert environment - but Australians do eat (2) _____ types of meat enjoyed by the Aborigines. These are kangaroo and crocodile. Kangaroo meat is delicious and low (3) _____ fat. Crocodile is a white meat, similar to chicken, but with more protein and less fat than chicken. Australians grill them at barbecues, which are very popular in Australia and are known as 'barbies'. Australians have a (4) _____ tooth and a national dessert to satisfy it; it's called a pavlova and is made with cream and fruit. It was named after Russian ballerina Anna Pavlova when she visited Australia in the 1920s. Australians also love 'biccies' (Australian for 'biscuits') and the most famous are Tim Tams. Australians eat millions of (5) _____ of these chocolate biscuits every year!

Modern Australian cuisine is very interesting indeed!
