At home with a snake

Nabil and his father went into the jungle to cut bamboo. It was very hot and Nabil felt sleepy. He sat down on a log next to the path.

His father called, "Nabil! Be careful where you sit!" Nabil jumped up and looked. Behind the log was a long, green and brown snake. It slipped away from Nabil into the ferns.

Nabil asked his father, "Why was that snake there? " His father said, "The jungle is the snake's home.

That snake is a python. It lives in the tall trees and thick bushes. When we come into the jungle, we are in the snake's habitat. We must show respect. That is why we only cut the bamboo that we need and we leave the rest of the jungle alone." Nabil's father cut some bamboo and then they went home.
